

ABSTRACT

The present invention is directed to a system, method, and apparatus for orienting images. A neural net is trained with images of known orientation and an indicator
5 indicating such known orientation. Images of unknown orientation are then input to the neural net and the orientation is determined based on the output of the neural net.

0077-0558-111400